

AUSTRALIA

Student Teaching

SEMESTER

The Program

Students will be supervised by a professor from the host institution as well as an on-site practicing teacher. The professor will be responsible for orienting the students to the culture of Australian schools, supervising their placement, and grading their work. Students participating in these programs usually do their first student teaching placement in New York State. However, in the Fall semester, students may do their first placement in Australia as the semester begins in July. Secondary Education students will be required to teach two subject areas due to academic differences in Australia.

ACU National is a secular institution open to all. It is particularly strong in the education field. Although located in major metropolitan centers, the campuses are small and faculty and staff provide individual attention to students.

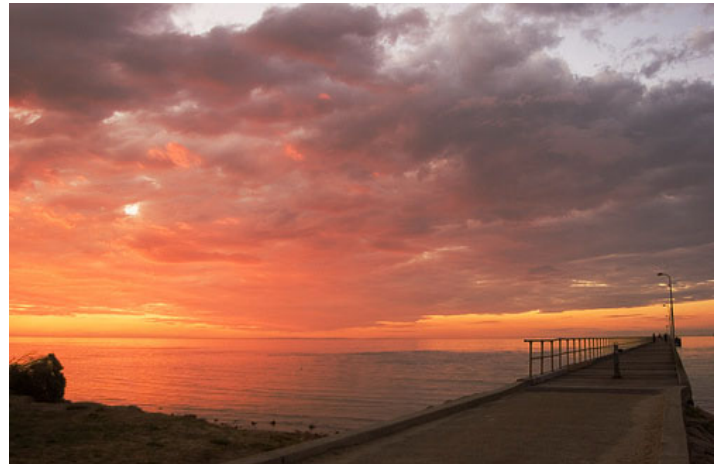

Requirements for Australia

For US citizens wanting to teach in Australia, a visa is required. Information and applications will be provided to you by the program specialist at the Oswego OIEP.

Students participating in student teaching in Australia must provide a written recommendation from the supervising faculty. Students must submit a current resume, including any pertinent teaching experience completed to date. Students are also encouraged to provide the Program Specialist with as much "raw data" as possible. i.e. – special skills, qualifications, interests etc.

All of the above will help facilitate the placement process in Australia and ensure the best fit for each student's cross-cultural experience.

Note: Teaching placements in Australia are made based on availability of sites. Every effort is made to secure placements for Oswego student teachers as far in advance as possible, however in many cases placements are not finalized until just prior to departure to Australia. Contact program specialist for more information.
