

Graduate Assistantship for Cooper/Glimmerglass Fitness Centers Department of Residence Life and Housing

Overview

Cooper and Glimmerglass Fitness Centers exist to provide the campus community with a means to reach their fitness goals and help in the development of the overall wellness model as adopted by the Department of Residence Life and Housing. Located in residential complexes, both centers offer roughly the same exercise equipment, which include free weights, Cybex circuits and a variety of cardio equipment (such as treadmills, stationary bikes and elliptical trainers). These centers are non-profit facilities, run from the income derived from membership fees of the students, faculty and staff. A student staff of approximately 60 employees (desk staff, personal trainers, group exercise instructors and student managers) operates the centers. A full time, professional manager and graduate assistant direct the entire fitness center operation.
