“How ready are our schools for 21st century teaching and learning?”

Workshop Program by: Dr. Giselle Martin-Kniep

During this program, participants will interact with a number of tools and measures for assessing a school's organizational capacity and will discuss the contexts and purposes for their use. They will also review a case study of a school that has used these measures and examine the ways in which their use is impacting decision making and action planning. Finally, they will identify ways in which they can use some of these tools in their work.
